REPORT.

The events of the year 1873, in connection with this Institution, involve much of vital import to its welfare, and may be thus briefly told.

At the commencement of the year its pupils were 29 in number, 13 males and 16 females; in the course of the year 6 males and 6 females were admitted, and 2 males and 1 female left. There remained in the Asylum in December last 38 pupils, 17 males and 21 females. There were also 11 out-door workers.

The conduct of the pupils has, with few exceptions, been praiseworthy, and has given no cause for interference from the Committee. Rather more than the average sickness has prevailed, and they have on several occasions been obliged to avail themselves of the kind medical aid of Dr. Dew, the Hon. Surgeon to the Institution.

In our last Report we had to lament the death of our late Master, Mr. Maddy. During the whole of the year 1873 no opportunity could be found of appointing a successor, the Committee being of opinion that the Master must have had experience of modern improvements in the modes of giving instruction, both mental and manual, to the Blind. They are happy to add that Mr. Benjamin Turner, from the Blind Asylum at Manchester, has recently been appointed to the office. His success in teaching there, and the knowledge and experience he must have in consequence gained, lead them to hope for much that is good in every way for the welfare of our own Institution.

Canon Knight, after resigning the office of Chaplain, which he so efficiently filled from the first opening of the Chapel attached to this Building, promised still to continue his weekly Catechetical Lectures till his successor could be appointed. This he very kindly did up to the close of last August, from which time the Rev. Alfred Medland has discharged the duties of the office greatly to the satisfaction of the Committee, who at this Meeting intend to present him to your notice for election as Chaplain to the Institution. They feel assured that if elected he will continue to impress the plain truths of the Gospel, and that this privilege, which has been the happy lot of all the pupils of the Institution from its first foundation, will not be interrupted.

The Rev. A. Medland reports as follows:—

“Considering the comparatively short time I have been connected with the Institution, and my little acquaintance with the capabilities and acquirements of the Blind, anything like a formal Report had better be deferred for the present.

“The female pupils appear to have been under good influence, and manifest for the most part a very nice spirit. They passed a very fair Scriptural examination, much to the credit of their intelligent blind Teacher.

“The boys are few in number, and have manifestly suffered from the absence of a duly qualified Master, a want which has now been happily supplied.

“The weekly Catechetical Lecture has been continued, and I have been pleased with the attention manifested and the intelligent answers given from time to time, particularly by the female pupils.”

Mr. Barrett reports of the musical instruction that he has altogether twenty-four pupils, male and female in equal number. That some are making good progress, and others with less natural ability are still earnest in their endeavours to improve. The Blind teachers continue efficient and diligent.

Much difficulty has been experienced in filling vacancies when they occur in the Choir, the opportunities of selection being much limited by the small number of the pupils.

Also two of the most promising voices have, with the consent of the Committee, been admitted at the College at Norwood, where, to the exclusion of manufacturing work, the study of music is made the chief employment under an efficient staff of instructors.

The leading soprano has for some time been seriously indisposed, and obliged for awhile to leave the Institution.

These and other causes have occasioned considerable difficulty to Mr. Barrett, yet he adds that amongst his pupils some have exerted themselves to the utmost of their ability, and though the singing of the usual anthem on Sunday has necessarily been temporarily discontinued, the choral service has been sustained. Three of the pupils are able to take Sunday duty at the organ.

The Music Room of the Institution has been used for the meetings of the Festival Choir, and in this way a sum has been realized out of which the Committee have devoted £50 to the work of improving the Chapel, which has been undertaken through the exertions of the Chaplain. The necessity of some alterations had long been felt, and when the time for making them arrived, the well-known Architect, Mr. Masters, a member of the congregation and earnest well-wisher to the Asylum, came forward, prepared an excellent plan, and further superintended its execution. These services on the part of Mr. Masters have not only been gratuitous, but he has also rendered substantial aid in collecting the funds required for getting the work executed. It is quite unnecessary to add that Mr. Masters has the hearty thanks of the Committee.

At the time of the Festival Meetings seven tickets were kindly presented by Miss Reynolds, these the Festival Committee liberally increased to twenty-four, thus enabling the pupils to obtain the very great enjoyment of hearing one of the morning performances.

Miss Farler, ever kind in her remembrance of this Institution, also provided space for the Blind at her last concert.

From Miss Taylor we have received the gift of a very nice piano.

The sale of goods in 1872 showed an improvement; that of the last year, though still much below former years of prosperity, amounted to £742. 0s. 8d., being again an increase of £41. 0s. 5d. upon the sales of 1872.
